

WVU Comes to Huntington for First Time Since 1915

We Killed 'em with Class; Parties Everywhere

Big fun, had by everyone Saturday. Even though Marshall couldn't quite take it the distance, they acquitted themselves well. Many were worried that the Herd would be lucky to score, but the opening kickoff return and Binswanger field goal ignited the crowd and got the place pumping. It was hot as a day at the beach, and nobody brought lotion, but that didn't stop the record-breaking crowd of more than 40,000 from enjoying every minute of the game. The end result wasn't ideal, but, hey, we're just getting started.

HNN's Tony Seaton was at the tailgate parties and on the sideline for you.
